

PODCASTING FOR TEACHERS OF ITALIAN

VATI ABN 19723479771

The relevant use of Information and Communications Technology (ICT) in student learning facilitates engagement and can enhance the LOTE program.

A Podcast is an ideal tool for teachers of LOTE as it allows students to be immersed in spoken language that is both relevant to student interests and pitched at the right level. Podcasts are a valuable vehicle in LOTE to enhance student engagement and learning. They are best produced by teachers and/or students.

At the conclusion of this workshop participants will have the skills to make an educational Podcast. They will have made the first episode of their Podcast, have it published on the internet, and listed in the iTunes podcast directory, so that their students can subscribe to it and transfer it to their iPods the next day!

Participants will have to bring their own fully charged laptop. A booklet and CD containing software needed to reproduce the steps on their own computers at home will be provided.

Presenter:

Andrew Douch from Wanganui Park SC will present this course. Andrew was awarded an Australian Government Award for Quality Schooling and was named the Victorian Microsoft Innovative Teacher of the Year 2007, for his work with Podcasting.
